There never has been a better time to be an emergency physician. The debate over the need for our specialty is in the distant past. Our ability to provide excellent care to our patients has never been greater. Coordinated systems of care for such illnesses as STEMI, stroke, sepsis, and trauma all rely on us as integral participants, and make our practice more effective and satisfying. Our individual opportunities in practice, leadership, research, education, academics, quality and emergency medicine subspecialties are tremendous. Our training programs are thriving. One of our own, Dr. Steven Stack, of Kentucky, is even President-Elect of the American Medical Association!

We are well positioned in this era of meaningful health care reform as part of the solution, and not part of the problem. ACEP’s logo with the square representing the missing specialty is of historic significance, but that square is no longer missing. It has definitely been filled.

When I graduated from medical school over 30 years ago, the situation was much different. I can still vividly recall the look of shock on my distinguished faculty advisor’s face when I told him I was thinking of going into emergency medicine. He visibly recoiled, then said, “Why would you want to be a hardware clerk?” I have never understood that particular analogy — comparing us to restaurant servers or orchestra conductors, perhaps — or why he held hardware clerks in such low esteem.

More than once in residency, I was told by consultants, “This patient needs a REAL doctor.” Early in my attending career, I had to defend three of my colleagues when a powerful oncologist complaining to our CEO referred to them as “Huey, Dewey and Louie” (which were not their names). There was not much love or respect within the house of medicine for our specialty.

Many emergency physicians of my age have similar stories and, to paraphrase Henry V, can “strip his (her) sleeve and show his scars” earned in those early days. Back then, when you finished residency there was no question about whether or not to join ACEP. We felt like we occupied a beachhead on hostile shores, and we all needed to stay together.

Although the early history of emergency medicine is important to appreciate, it is not the paradigm of today. Our specialty faces a whole new set of challenges as we navigate through the uncharted waters of health care reform. We are moving from a health care system based on volume to one based on value.

Some of the trends we face include coverage expansion, emergence of retail health care, increased care coordination, emphasis on population health, value-based purchasing, pay for performance and “demand destruction.” How will these trends play out? No one can possibly know exactly. Uncertainty is the only certainty. However, like any major transformation, do not expect our journey through these uncharted waters to be calm.

We truly need all hands on deck as we navigate a course. It will require a collective vigilance by our specialty. No other organization is positioned to provide that voice during this period that ACEP — and at the state level, ICEP — can provide. It is definitely time to stay together as a specialty.

According to our mission statement, “The Illinois College of Emergency Physicians exists to support access to quality emergency medical care and to promote the interests of emergency physicians and the patients and communities they serve.” Our specialty was founded to improve care of our patients. As long as we remain focused on this part of our mission, I am very confident we will be just fine, and being an emergency physician will become even more rewarding.

As an emergency physician practicing in Illinois, I feel very fortunate to have the state organization we have in ICEP. Dr. Edward Ward has provided exemplary leadership as President over the past year. Under his leadership, ICEP has become stronger and more ef-effective. Our Board of Directors are excellent emergency physicians with multiple diverse talents from a variety of practice settings. Our committee chairs are dedicated, effective leaders. We have many active members giving their time and effort to improve the care of emergency department patients in our state, and the ability of our members to provide that care. Our executive director, Ginny Kennedy Palys, and her administrative staff, are extremely competent and wonderful to work with on ICEP projects.

ICEP is a first-rate organization. I strongly endorse participation in ICEP courses, committees and other activities if for no other reason than to enrich your professional career. You will meet, and work with, some amazing people.

In the upcoming year, ICEP will hold multiple conferences including the Emergency Medicine Board Review Intensive courses, Oral Board Review Courses, EM4LIFE LLSA Article Review Courses, Resident Career Day, Ultrasound for Emergency Medicine courses, Emergent Procedures Simulation Skills Lab courses, EM Update in Peoria, and the Spring Symposium and Annual Business Meeting. In addition, ICEP will debut a new one-day Symposium and Annual Business Meeting.

ICEP will be following all regulatory and legislative initiatives affecting our specialty at the state and national level, and will be following the developments in health care reform, advocating for our patients and our following the developments in health care at the state and national level, and will be legislative initiatives affecting our specialty.

ICEP will be revisiting our strategic plans and updating it as necessary. There is a lot going on!

Please contact me directly at dgriffen@icep.org if you are interested in being more involved. If you are mentoring residents and other emergency physicians and feel that ICEP involvement would enrich their career (which it will), please have them contact me as well. And be sure to tell them there has never been a better time to be an emergency physician.

Sincerely,

David Griffen, MD, PhD, FACEP
ICEP President

Leadership Conference December 9, 2014

ICEP Conference Center
Downers Grove, IL

A 1-day meeting focused on building leadership skills for emergency physicians

More details to be announced this summer at ICEP.org and in EPIC!

Legislation Passed to Fund Illinois Poison Center

At the end of May, the Illinois House of Representatives and Senate gave final legislative approval of SB741, which provides a dedicated funding source to keep the Illinois Poison Center (IPC) open for four years.

The bill was sponsored by Illinois Senator Don Harmon and Rep. Camille Lilly. Governor Pat Quinn signed the bill into law on June 16.

Earlier this year, the IPC gave notice of closure to the Illinois Department of Public Health due to insufficient funding. State and federal budget cuts totaling $1.5 million per year had led to a shortfall of $500,000 per year for the past three years. Without sustainable funding, the IPC was slated to close on June 30, 2014.

As part of the IPC’s Save the Poison Center campaign, almost 11,000 letters, emails and calls were made since January 2014, with more than 400 emails sent by emergency physicians.

With funding secured, the IPC can continue to provide help to all emergency physicians in Illinois. The closure of the poison center would have created a tremendous burden on the emergency medical response and emergency departments throughout the state due lack of home triage away from 911 and the EMS system and lack of medical toxicology information services.

Highlights of Spring Legislative Session

The Illinois General Assembly has adjourned the spring session. Both chambers wrapped up the session on the final day but leave Springfield with many unaddressed issues, including pension reform, gambling expansion, issues surrounding the Lincoln Presidential Library, school funding and others.

The Fall Veto Session is scheduled for November 19, 20, 21 and December 2, 3 and 4, 2014.

A full description of all proposals introduced will be provided in an End-of-Session Report to come in July and published in the next EPIC.

The following are brief highlights of the session.

Among the bills passed are:
- Illinois Poison Center funding assured for 4 years
- Telehealth bill that provides definitions for terms such as interactive telecommunications system and telehealth services
- EMS Education Standards to bring Illinois into national compliance
- Expansion of the POLST (physician orders for life-sustaining treatment) form
- Psychologists prescribing authority with strict regulations that include additional education equivalent to physician assistance training and no “grandfathering” of current psychologists.

ICEP and its lobbyists Illinois Strategies believe that the governor intends to sign all of these bills. The Illinois Poison Center funding has already been signed into law.

Among the bills that failed are:
- Designation of Level III trauma centers
- EMS medical assisted transport

Look for more information to be published in the End of Session report later in July.

Gov. Quinn Signs Bill to Reform Illinois Medicaid

Governor Pat Quinn signed legislation on June 16 to modernize and improve Illinois’ Medicaid system.

The new law will benefit Illinois’ three million residents who currently receive Medicaid, as well as the state’s 200-plus hospitals and 1,200 nursing homes by restoring adult dental and podiatric care, providing increased protections and more.

The legislation makes important reforms by creating uniform requirements for Managed Care Organizations and Accountable Care Entities, providing stability for hospitals and nursing homes, and giving a huge boost to the redesign of Medicaid.

It also aligns Illinois law with federal law, providing Medicaid coverage for children who have been without private insurance for three months.

ACEP Poll Finds ED Visits On the Rise, Questions ACA Impact

Nearly half of emergency physicians responding to a poll are already seeing a rise in emergency visits since January 1 when expanded coverage under the Affordable Care Act (ACA) began to take effect.

In a nationwide online poll conducted by the American College of Emergency Physicians (ACEP), 86 percent expect emergency visits to increase over the next three years. More than three-fourths (77 percent) say their EDs are not adequately prepared for significant increases.

“Emergency visits will increase in large part because more people will have health insurance and therefore will be seeking medical care,” said ACEP President Alex Rosenau, DO, FACEP. “But America has severe primary care physician shortages, and many physicians do not accept Medicaid patients, because Medicaid pays so low. When people can’t get appointments with physicians, they will seek care in emergency departments.”

The data suggest states that expanded Medicaid are more likely to see increases in the volume of Medicaid emergency patients. Dr. Rosenau said that policymakers need to make sure there are adequate resources to care for growing numbers of emergency patients.

“Congress and President Obama must make it a national priority now to strengthen the emergency care system,” Dr. Rosenau said. “ACEP is urging Congress to make a firm commitment to emergency patients by holding a hearing to examine whether additional strains are occurring in the emergency department safety net as a consequence of the Affordable Care Act.”

An overwhelming 84 percent of emergency physicians report that psychiatric patients are being held — “boarded” — in their emergency department, with nine in 10 (91 percent) saying that this practice has led to violent behavior by distressed psychiatric patients, distracted staff or bed shortages, all of which may harm patients.

More than half of the physicians polled add that the amount of time and effort their emergency

Resident Career Day Features ACEP’s Dr. Paul Kivela for Keynote Lecture

Register today for ICEP’s Resident Career Day that targets what residents are looking for: practical, real-world guidance on career planning, to help you get what you want, where you want, when it’s time to start the job hunt.

Resident Career Day will be held Thursday, September 4 at Presence Resurrection Medical Center’s Marion Conference Center in Chicago.

The 2014 program features keynote speaker Paul Kivela, MD, MBA, FACEP, ACEP’s Secretary-Treasurer. Dr. Kivela will present “What I Didn’t Learn in Residency” and will participate in a panel discussion on managing student debt.

Life after residency will bring a new set of challenges, starting with the search for your first position. ICEP’s Resident Career Day focuses on helping you meet these challenges head on and turn them into opportunities. On the agenda:

• Keynote speaker Dr. Paul Kivela, ACEP Secretary-Treasurer, presenting key lessons he learned outside of residency
• A panel discussion on managing student debt, featuring Dr. Kivela, Dr. Matthew Pirotte, and financial advisor Thomas Olexa
• Building your brand on social media, presented by Dr. Ernest Wang, who was just named Faculty of the Year by the University of Chicago EM Residency Program
• A panel discussion on global health opportunities, featuring Dr. Timothy Erickson, Dr. Jennifer Chan, and Dr. Cai Glushak
• The popular “Speed Dating” Career Fair networking event: top industry recruiters will rotate through tables of participants to discuss available employment opportunities and make valuable connections for the future

Registration and a full program agenda are available online now at ICEP.org. There is no charge for residents, medical students, and ICEP member attending physicians to attend.

Ultrasound for EM Courses Offer Live Model Practice

Dates are set for the Ultrasound for Emergency Medicine hands-on workshops this fall at ICEP! Courses will be held Friday, September 5 and Wednesday, December 3 at the ICEP Conference Center in Downers Grove.

ICEP’s hands-on workshops for physicians demonstrate the use of bedside ultrasound to diagnose acute life-threatening conditions, guide invasive procedures, treat emergency medical conditions, and improve the care of emergency department patients.

The program uses live models to cover pelvic, gallbladder, AAA and FAST Exam techniques. State-of-the-art trainers let you practice central line and peripheral IV placement.

ICEP’s interactive program offers two options to choose based on your experience:

The Basic course is designed for physicians with limited or minimal experience, seeking both didactic lectures and hands-on practice on ultrasound techniques.

The Fast Track course is designed for physicians with prior ultrasound experience seeking hands-on practice only. The Fast Track Course does not include didactic lectures but puts participants hands-on at skill stations the entire course to maximize practice.

The full course agenda and registration is available online at ICEP.org. Due to the interactive nature of the program, space is limited. Register early to reserve your space.

ICEP’s Ultrasound for Emergency Medicine courses are approved for a maximum of 5.25 AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™.

ICEP Seeking Faculty for Fall Oral Boards

ICEP is still in need of faculty for its Oral Board Review courses on Friday and Saturday, August 22-23 at the Chicago O’Hare Marriott Hotel.

Largely because of the excellent faculty, ICEP has the reputation for presenting the nation’s premier oral board review courses. Faculty will present single or multiple case simulations to candidates in strict oral board exam format and then provide feedback on their performance. The courses are intensive — with a one-to-one student to faculty ratio. The honorarium is $200 per course day.

ICEP’s Oral Board Review courses run from approximately 7:45 am to 6:15 pm with coffee and lunch breaks. Faculty may sign up for a full day, half day morning, or half day afternoon session on one or both days of the course.

Please contact Lora Finucane at loraf@icep.org or 630.495.6400, ext. 219, to sign up or with questions.

ACEP Poll Finds ED Visits on the Rise Since Jan. 1, Questions Impact of ACA department expends to transfer psychiatric patients who need admission has increased since January.

The poll follows ACEP’s 2014 State-by-State Report Card released in January. Forty percent of emergency physicians polled say their state policymakers are doing a poor job of addressing the issues raised in their state’s 2014 Report Card, which looked at the issues of Access to Emergency Care, Quality and Patient Safety, Medical Liability Environment, Public Health and Injury Prevention and Disaster Preparedness.

When asked about the most important policy solution to improve emergency care, the top response (32 percent) was “enacting liability reform.”

ACEP supports passage of H.R. 36/S. 961 — the “Health Care Safety Net Enhancement Act of 2013” that would provide liability protections to physicians (emergency and on-call) who perform the services mandated by federal law. That law requires patients be screened, diagnosed and treated, regardless of their insurance status or ability to pay.

When asked about other issues related to the implementation of health care reforms:

• More than two-thirds (69 percent) report challenges with the disposition of patients who require hospital admission but do not meet the Two-Midnight Rule for hospital admission —25 percent call it a “significant dilemma.” (This rule requires patients to be in the hospital for two midnights before Medicare will reimburse for a hospital admission.)

• Just over one-third (35 percent) of emergency physicians report seeing more Medicaid patients, and 27 percent are seeing fewer privately insured patients.

• In regard to long-term impact, 34 percent believe the ACA will have a positive impact on access to emergency care.

Methodology:
Marketing General Incorporated conducted the poll on behalf of ACEP. This survey was conducted online within the United States by Marketing General Incorporated on behalf of the American College of Emergency Physicians between April 4-14, 2014, among 1,845 adults age 18 or older, providing a response rate of 8 percent and a margin of error of 2.3 percent.
